Friday 7th July (Red) Translation of St Thomas of Canterbury

Today, 7th July, commemorates the anniversary of the translation of St Thomas Becket in 1220, when his tomb in Canterbury Cathedral was opened and his relics moved to a grander shrine. Becket had been murdered in the cathedral on 29 December 1170. The new shrine was in the most prominent position in the cathedral, behind the high altar; a candle now marks the site of the shrine, which was destroyed at the Reformation.
